

Satellite radio is the best introduction since sliced bread. With its ever expanding services it becomes a valuable tool for all American's. The only disappointing factor of satellite radio is that I don't have it in all of my cars. I have recently added it to my personal airplane and boat, as well as two cars. Expansion of satellite radio is desirable, and I am willing to pay for the fine service. The fast growing listenership proves the value. Hopefully no government interference will slow the potential and the growth for satellite radio.
